

Consider these accoutrements for your netbook

By DEBORAH PORTERFIELD

Gannett ContentOne

The last thing you want to do after you've snuggled into your favorite chair with a netbook is get up and begin a frantic search for a power cord. Now you can avoid some of the hassles associated with recharging. Gateway's new LT21 netbook series delivers up to 10 hours of battery life. Key to the longer power time is the 6-cell lithium-ion battery. In addition to the long-lasting battery, the Gateway LT2118u model features 802.11b/g/n Wi-Fi connectivity, a 1.66GHz Intel Atom N450 processor, a 10.1-inch LCD screen, 1 gigabyte of memory, a 250GB hard drive, a built-in webcam and two built-in speakers. It costs about $350. Other configurations are available.

www.gateway.com

Get more comfortable with your mouse

Considering how much time you use your computer's mouse, you might as well make the experience as comfortable as possible. Jelfin recently launched a new computer mouse designed with comfort in mind. The ball-shaped mouse is wrapped in a soft "luxe gel" covering. The maker says this encourages you to cup your fingers naturally around the ball rather than extending them outward, resulting in a more natural, ergonomic feel. Available in blue, red, yellow, green and pink, the Jelfin Mouse costs $35 and ships with a travel case.

www.jelfin.com

iPod speaker system boasts cradling options

First came the iPod, then came all of the products de-

See GADGETS, Page 2D signed to enhance the iPod user's listening and viewing experience. A new entrant is JVC's iPod 5-watt speaker system, which boasts a wraparound design and Dolby Virtual Surround Sound. Like many docks, the JVC XS-SR3 model can hold an iPod vertically for music listening. But with wide-screen viewing of video in mind, the JVC iPod speaker system can cradle the device horizontally as well. Priced at about $150, it comes with four iPod clips and a remote control.

www.jvc.com

Conquer that cable clutter

Chances are that one of your New Year's resolutions goes something like this: "I must get rid of all this junk." And let's face it: A lot of that clutter probably stems from all those telephone, computer and charger cords that seem to have taken over your office or home. With that in mind, CableOrganizer.com is offering organization kits to help you conquer the clutter. The Standard Complete Single Office Organizing Kit, which includes five Velcro wire wraps, six wire clips, a cord organizer and a cord anchor, costs $23. The Professional Complete Single Office Organizing Kit, which includes five wire wraps, six wire clips, a cord organizer, six cable ties and 5-foot wrap-around sleeving, costs $40.

<http://cableorganizer.com>

Gannett ContentOne

Gateway's new LT21 netbook series delivers up to 10 hours of battery life by using a 6-cell, lithium-ion battery.

CableOrganizer.com offers kits to help you organize all the cables
extending from your electronic devices.

Gannett
ContentOne